1. The newly built merchant marine radio-telegraph station at Gdynia is serviced by six operators. For the time being the station is confined to maintaining contact with coastal shipping; communications with merchant ships on the high seas are transmitted through the naval radio-telegraph station at Oksywie. Attempts are continuing to increase the range of the Gdynia station and to transmit messages by radio-telephone. These attempts have so far been unsuccessful.
2. Wladyslaw Lekki, harbor master at Gdynia since August 1949, was recently dismissed and replaced by a woman of Soviet nationality.
